Texture Feeling

In short, texture in interior design captures the way an object feels and looks. These sensory details shape how we perceive and experience a space. The interplay of contrast, color, lighting, and architecture work in harmony with texture and materials, bringing authenticity to simple, modern spaces.

Wave & Carnival Mirror Mood

A distorting mirror or carnival mirror is a popular attraction at carnivals and fairs. Instead of a normal plane mirror that reflects a perfect mirror image, distorting mirrors are curved mirrors, often using convex and concave sections to achieve the distorted effect.wavy mirrors can work wonders in smaller spaces. The undulating design can create the illusion of more space, enhancing the room's depth and making it feel larger and more open. They are versatile enough to complement various design aesthetics, from minimalist and modern to bohemian and eclectic.
